

Philipp Hilbert. Senior Product Manager, Marketplace & Seller Experience.

Positioning. Thirteen years shipping regulated-industry platforms; now applying that precision to seller-facing marketplace products across MENA and Turkey.

BERLIN, GERMANY · HILBERT@TRUE-NORTH.BERLIN · TRUE-NORTH.BERLIN

LinkedIn · GitHub · www.true-north.berlin · YouTube \(EN sample\)

Dear Amazon Hiring Team,

I am applying for the Senior Product Manager, MENA Marketplace role. I have spent thirteen years building and shipping products in regulated, complex, cross-functional environments, defence AI platforms, national labour-market analytics systems, insurance SaaS, fintech marketplaces, and what draws me to this particular role is the specific problem it describes: deciding what transfers from Amazon's global playbook, what needs to be built from scratch for MENA and Turkey, and where agentic AI can restructure how sellers interact with Amazon's tools entirely. That is a genuinely hard and interesting product problem, not a rollout exercise.

My most directly transferable experience is the construct8 marketplace I built as a solo founder in 2025-2026. It is a two-sided B2B platform connecting construction firms with workers, with an anonymity-until-payment model protecting both sides until commitment and LLM agents across the funnel handling the operations a human headhunter would otherwise perform. Running product, engineering, operations, and growth alone on a marketplace gives you a clear view of seller-side and buyer-side friction that you do not get from a large-team environment. I also built the funnel and conversion analysis in SQL from scratch, which is the same data discipline this role calls for in its assessment of adoption growth and friction points.

At Rohde & Schwarz I managed the internal AI and data platform for the FCAS European programme, a cross-functional team of fifteen engineers and data scientists across multinational organisations. I restructured delivery so GitOps rollouts via ArgoCD dropped from days to thirty minutes, making the platform hotfix-capable, and I redirected the product strategy based on instrumented workflow analysis: the UI-led approach recorded zero usage, so I pivoted to developer-code-first and pipeline runs increased 200%. The discipline of writing high-quality documents, securing stakeholder alignment, and holding a monthly reporting cadence with senior leadership is how that programme ran, and it matches the key job responsibilities described in this posting precisely.

The regional dimension matters to me personally. I am actively targeting the UAE and am willing to relocate to Dubai or Abu Dhabi to work on-site. I am not treating this as a geography compromise; I am specifically interested in the commercial and structural dynamics of the Gulf and MENA markets, and I understand that being a visible and vocal advocate for MENATR selling partners in global forums requires genuine presence and commitment, not a remote approximation.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my experience translates to this role.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
