§ WHY REDINGTON

Redington sits at the hinge of the technology distribution ecosystem: connecting hundreds of channel partners and resellers through a single digital platform is exactly the kind of structural complexity where good product management compounds. The posting calls out onboarding, catalog, pricing, checkout, order management, financing, and fulfilment as one coherent ownership surface, that breadth, and the requirement to double as PMM for go-to-market, is the kind of scope I find genuinely interesting rather than overwhelming. The fact that the platform reaches enterprise customers across a partner ecosystem means that every capability shipped has multiplier effects across thousands of downstream businesses. That is exactly the environment where my strengths compound.

§ SIDE PROJECT

CONSTRUCT8 GITHUB.COM/HILBERTP →

Two-sided B2B marketplace matching construction firms with workers, built solo, zero to one.

- Anonymity-until-payment model that protects both sides until commitment is confirmed.
- WhatsApp and Telegram as the primary product surface, meeting users where they already operate.
- LLM agents across the funnel so a single operator can run day-to-day matching at scale.
- Directly transferable to Redington's partner onboarding and marketplace mechanics: two-sided trust, structured cataloging, and funnel analytics in SQL.

§ HOW I WOULD WORK AT REDINGTON

First weeks, concrete.

WEEK 1

Listen, map, find the gaps.

Shadow partner onboarding, catalog ops, and checkout flows end-to-end, then map the friction points against the current roadmap to identify where the highest-leverage intervention sits.

WEEK 2

Slice and validate.

Run structured discovery sessions with channel partners and internal Sales and Supply Chain stakeholders to pressure-test the roadmap prioritisation before any sprint planning commits.

WEEK 3+

Ship, measure, repeat.

Own the first sprint cycle end-to-end, PRD, Jira stories, acceptance criteria, and a go-to-market brief for the first feature release, and establish the cadence that scales.

I COVER LETTER

Dear Redington Hiring Team,

I am writing to apply for the Senior Product Manager role on Redington's B2B marketplace platform. With ten years of product ownership across B2B SaaS, healthcare, insurance, and e-commerce platforms, I have spent the majority of my career doing exactly what this role demands: turning complex operational ecosystems into scalable, measurable digital products.

The scope of the platform, onboarding, catalog, pricing, checkout, order management, financing, and fulfilment, maps closely to work I have already done. At AOK ITSCare, I migrated a legacy procurement system to Shopware for three insurance organisations and roughly 20,000 end users, owning the full backlog, user stories, and acceptance criteria in Jira. At EMIL Group, I shipped the Claims Center from concept to production on an 18-person delivery team, and cut time-to-market for new insurance product launches from months to under a week. Both projects required exactly the kind of cross-functional alignment between Engineering, Operations, Sales, and business stakeholders that the Redington posting describes.

The PMM dimension of this role is one I take seriously. At Rohde & Schwarz, I redirected product strategy based on direct workflow instrumentation, a UI-led feature had recorded exactly zero clicks, while a developer-code-first path drove a 200% increase in pipeline runs, and then led the go-to-market narrative for the shift. Translating a technical capability into a partner adoption story for Redington's channel ecosystem is the same mechanic, at a different altitude.

On the data and analytics side: I have defined KPIs, built ETL pipelines with Dagster and dbt, and used funnel and churn analysis in SQL to inform prioritisation. Data-driven decisions are not a process I follow, they are how I know whether a decision was right.

I am actively targeting the UAE and am ready to relocate to Dubai on short notice. Redington's position at the centre of the technology distribution supply chain, and the opportunity to build a platform that compounds across hundreds of channel partners, is the kind of scope I have been looking for.

I would welcome the chance to discuss how my background fits the role in more detail.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
