§ WHY FANATICS MOMENTUM

Fanatics Momentum is doing something genuinely rare: building a regulated commercial gaming operator from the ground up in the UAE, under GCGRA licensing, at a moment when the market is defining its own rails. The combination of Momentum's regional footprint with Fanatics' global technology scale is exactly the kind of hybrid that makes platform work interesting, you are not bolting KYC onto an existing product, you are deciding what the identity layer looks like for every vertical that follows. The wallet and onboarding problem at the intersection of a regulated market, multiple product lines, and high conversion pressure is precisely where I have spent the last several years. That is exactly the type of complexity where careful platform thinking pays compound dividends.

§ SIDE PROJECT

CONSTRUCT8 GITHUB.COM/HILBERTP →

Two-sided B2B marketplace matching construction firms with workers, built solo from zero.

- Anonymity-until-payment model that protects both sides until commitment is confirmed.
 - WhatsApp and Telegram as the primary product surface, keeping onboarding friction near zero.
 - LLM agents running across the full funnel so a single operator manages day-to-day throughput.
 - Demonstrates end-to-end funnel ownership and conversion analysis, directly transferable to onboarding and wallet conversion at FanMo.

§ HOW I WOULD WORK AT FANATICS MOMENTUM

First weeks, concrete.

WEEK 1

Listen, map, find the gaps.

Shadow the current registration and KYC flows end to end, interview Compliance, Operations, and Engineering counterparts, and map where drop-off, delay, and manual intervention actually occur, before touching a roadmap.

WEEK 2

Slice and prioritise.

Translate findings into a prioritised problem list, distinguish what is a GCGRA compliance constraint from what is an inherited design choice, and agree the first measurable outcome with stakeholders.

WEEK 3+

Ship, measure, iterate.

Run the first experiment, one friction point, one hypothesis, one success metric, and establish the cadence of platform-level review so shared capabilities stay coherent across Sportsbook, Lottery, and Fan Ecosystem.

I COVER LETTER

Dear Fanatics Momentum team,

Fanatics Momentum is building something that does not yet have a playbook: a fully regulated multi-vertical gaming operator in the UAE, where the identity and wallet layer has to work correctly from day one. That problem, getting onboarding, KYC, and payment infrastructure right under GCGRA licensing, at the speed the market demands, is one I have spent most of my product career preparing for, even if I did not know the company name at the time.

At Kvitt Payment Solutions I owned the full consumer payments journey from zero, including the P2P wallet UX and PSP integrations, and took the product to acquisition inside the Sparkasse girocard ecosystem. At EMIL Group I ran a B2B SaaS platform for insurers and underwriters, a heavily regulated environment where compliance constraints and conversion pressure arrive simultaneously and neither can be ignored. At the Bundesagentur für Arbeit I served as Deputy IT Security Officer while owning a national analytics platform, which means I have sat on both sides of the compliance-versus-delivery tension. In all three cases the core skill was the same: turning a complex regulated journey into something a real user can complete without noticing how hard it was.

What the Fanatics Momentum posting describes as the challenge, simplifying registration and verification, improving payment reliability, building reusable shared capabilities across verticals, matches the sequence I have run at multiple employers. At CLINET Platforms I cut a mobile patient intake journey from thirty minutes to five by mapping the CGM hospital interface properly before building it. At Rohde & Schwarz I redirected an entire platform strategy after instrumenting two competing workflows and discovering the UI-led path had zero real usage. The instinct is always the same: instrument first, build second, measure the outcome you agreed before you started.

I am also a long-term active user of online poker and gaming platforms, which gives me a user-research perspective on what good and bad onboarding actually feels like from the player's side, the moment a verification step feels disproportionate, the moment a wallet withdrawal becomes a reason to leave. That domain familiarity accelerates discovery work that would otherwise require months of user interviews to build.

The UAE posting is not a stretch destination for me. It is on my active shortlist: I am willing to relocate to Dubai or Abu Dhabi and work on-site, which means I can be physically present for the cross-functional work that platform-level decisions require.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background fits the Identity, Wallet, and KYC mandate.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
