§ WHY BRAIN CO.

Brain Co. is doing exactly the work I find most worth doing: not selling AI as a concept but shipping it into institutions where the stakes are real, government, health, financial services, and where a failed deployment has consequences beyond the sprint. The Atlas platform's model-agnostic, secure-by-design architecture is the right answer to how regulated buyers actually think about vendor lock-in, and it matches the deployment philosophy I have practised across every engagement I have led. The posted regions, Abu Dhabi and Doha, are locations I am actively targeting, not a compromise. That is the kind of convergence that makes a role feel obvious rather than merely attractive.

§ SIDE PROJECT

CONSTRUCT8 GITHUB.COM/HILBERTP →

Two-sided B2B marketplace matching construction firms with workers, built to zero to one, alone.

- Anonymity-until-payment model that protects both sides of the marketplace until commitment is confirmed.
 - WhatsApp and Telegram as the primary product surface, meeting users where they already operate.
 - LLM agents across the funnel so a single operator runs the day-to-day without headcount.
 - Directly relevant to Brain Co.'s model: one person orchestrating agents to replace operational overhead in a regulated, trust-sensitive hiring context.

§ HOW I WOULD WORK AT BRAIN CO.

First weeks, concrete.

WEEK 1

Listen, map, find the gaps.

Shadow active deployments across the Abu Dhabi or Doha accounts, map the current workflow against Atlas's actual capability, and identify the two or three places where user adoption is stalling or the delivery cycle is longer than it needs to be.

WEEK 2

Slice, specify, validate.

Turn the highest-priority gap into a scoped use case with clear acceptance criteria, validate the specification with both the data science team and the customer stakeholder, and align on what a successful outcome looks like before a single sprint starts.

Ship, close, repeat.

Drive the first agile cycle to a live outcome, run a structured retrospective with the customer, feed the findings back into the roadmap, and start the pattern that turns a deployment into a long-term trusted relationship.

I COVER LETTER

Dear Brain Co. Hiring Team,

I am writing to apply for the AI Deployment Lead role based in Abu Dhabi and Doha. I have spent 13 years at the intersection of AI product delivery and institutional customers, defence, public sector, insurance, healthcare, payments, and I am now looking for the role where those years convert into the largest possible impact. Brain Co.'s mission to rebuild how institutions work, and your current phase of national-scale production deployments, is exactly that place.

The job description maps closely to what I have actually done. At Rohde & Schwarz I owned the AI and data platform for the FCAS European defence programme: I led a cross-functional team of 15 engineers and data scientists, managed agile sprints end to end, and championed the GitOps rollout that cut deployment time from days to 30 minutes. At EMIL Group I inherited a delivery organisation that was losing senior engineers and client trust simultaneously. I restructured it into three lean teams, stopped the attrition, and shipped the Claims Center from concept to production with no prior template. At Bundesagentur für Arbeit I was Deputy IT Security Officer while simultaneously driving a full infrastructure migration from bare-metal to containerised environments and rebuilding the ETL pipeline around Dagster and dbt. These are not adjacent experiences, they are the core of what the role asks for.

What I bring that is harder to list in a job description is the ability to stay in the room with a senior government or financial-services stakeholder and make the technical picture legible without dumbing it down. I have done that in German and English, in ministries and in commercial insurance, and I have done it when the news was bad. Trust with enterprise customers is earned slowly and lost instantly; I treat it accordingly.

On the technical side, I am fluent across the AI/ML stack that Brain Co. deploys: model deployment workflows, agentic pipelines, human-in-the-loop design, and the governance considerations that regulated buyers, government, finance, energy, bring to every conversation. I also understand the infrastructure underneath: Kubernetes, ArgoCD, CI/CD, containerised environments. I do not need the engineering team to translate for me, which means I can serve as a genuine bridge rather than a relay station.

Abu Dhabi and Doha are locations I am actively targeting. I am prepared to relocate and to travel regionally as the role requires. I am available at short notice and would welcome the chance to speak with your team.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
