§ WHY AVENGA

Avenga sits at the intersection of software delivery and domain-heavy industrial problems, which is where I have spent most of my career. The role asks for someone who can structure a physical product portfolio, variants, country rules, pricing logic, into actionable user stories and epics, then drive that work through a development team. That is a precise description of what I did at Scheidt & Bachmann, where retail POS and forecourt products had exactly this kind of variant and configuration complexity, and at Rohde & Schwarz, where I translated defence-programme requirements into a prioritised backlog for 15+ engineers. The CPQ dimension is a new surface, but the core mechanic, decomposing constraint-heavy, multi-variant product logic into precise acceptance criteria, is something I have done repeatedly. That combination of industrial domain density and agile execution rigour is where my track record is strongest.

§ SIDE PROJECT

CONSTRUCT8 GITHUB.COM/HILBERTP →

A two-sided B2B marketplace matching construction firms with workers, built and run solo.

- Anonymity-until-payment model protecting both sides until commitment is made.
 - WhatsApp and Telegram as the product surface, with LLM agents running the funnel.
 - Funnel and conversion analysis in SQL; one operator runs the full day-to-day.
 - Demonstrates zero-to-one ownership: discovery, spec, build, and operations in one role.

§ HOW I WOULD WORK AT AVENGA

First weeks, concrete.

WEEK 1

Listen, map, find the gaps.

Shadow the development team and stakeholders, map the existing product portfolio and variant rules, and identify where requirements are ambiguous or missing before writing a single user story.

WEEK 2

Slice, structure, validate.

Break the first backlog epics into user stories with clear acceptance criteria, surface the edge cases in pricing and country-specific rules, and validate them against stakeholder intent.

Ship, close loops.

Drive sprint ceremonies, keep the backlog refined two sprints ahead, and own incident management and SLA compliance from day one so the team never stops for lack of clarity.

I COVER LETTER

Dear Avenga team,

I am applying for the Senior Product Owner role. My background is 13 years of end-to-end product ownership in regulated, technically complex environments, defence AI platforms, national labour-market analytics, insurance SaaS, healthcare apps, and POS/forecourt systems. The common thread is translating dense, constraint-heavy requirements into precise user stories, epics, and acceptance criteria that a development team can actually ship.

The role description maps closely to what I have done at Scheidt & Bachmann, where I moved research results into production for retail and payments hardware across a matrix organisation in a full SAFe setup. Product variants, country-specific configurations, and pricing logic were core to that work. At Rohde & Schwarz I owned the backlog for a 15-person cross-functional team in Jira and Confluence, running Scrum ceremonies and keeping the roadmap aligned with senior stakeholders across a multinational programme. I know what it takes to keep a team unblocked and a roadmap credible when the underlying domain is complex.

The CPQ domain is new to me. I have not shipped configure-price-quote software specifically, and I want to be direct about that. The transferable mechanic I bring is strong: I have repeatedly decomposed multi-variant, rule-heavy physical and digital products into structured backlogs, identified requirement gaps before they became bugs, and built stakeholder alignment around a product vision. That process is the same regardless of whether the product category is CPQ, POS, or a defence data platform.

On the operational side, I have acted as Deputy IT Security Officer and managed incident response and SLA compliance in production environments. I am comfortable owning day-to-day product operation alongside the strategic work.

I would welcome a conversation about the role. My notice period is four weeks.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert

II CURRICULUM VITAE

§ PROFILE

Senior Product Owner and product manager with 13 years of product ownership in regulated industries including defence AI, public-sector analytics, insurance, healthcare, payments and retail. I translate complex technical and domain requirements into user stories, epics, and acceptance criteria, manage backlog refinement and sprint delivery in Jira, and align stakeholders from engineering through C-level on roadmap and vision. I lead cross-functional teams through agile delivery using Scrum, Kanban, and SAFe.

§ HOW I WORK

- I leave my ego at home. I want to drive the decision, not to have the last word.
 - On a new product I spend a little to learn before spending a lot to build. Cheap experiments make expensive decisions safe(r).
 - Outcome over output. Producing something is not the achievement; it also has to fit a market, so I agree what would count as success before we build and check afterwards whether it happened.
 - I keep the whole value chain in view, not just the backlog. Defect-to-fix time is a product metric; architects and DevOps engineers build that chain, my job is to steer it into the right lanes.
