§ WHY AKKODIS

The role sits precisely at the intersection where I have spent most of my career: complex digital platform delivery, where the Product Owner and Scrum Master functions need to live in the same person because the gap between them is where blockers breed. The explicit call for experience with real-time monitoring, workflow management, and operational approval processes maps directly to two of my most recent engagements, a national labour-market analytics platform and a defence AI data platform for FCAS. The combination of backlog discipline and ceremony facilitation is not a compromise for me; it is how I have always worked.

That is exactly the environment where my strengths compound.

§ HOW I WOULD WORK AT AKKODIS

First weeks, concrete.

WEEK 1

Listen, map, find the gaps.

Shadow existing sprint ceremonies, read the backlog top-to-bottom, and map every open dependency and blocker to the stakeholder who owns it.

WEEK 2

Sharpen and slice.

Run a structured backlog refinement session to tighten user stories, add missing acceptance criteria, and surface hidden cross-team dependencies before the next sprint planning.

WEEK 3 +

Ship and close loops.

Take over facilitation of the full Scrum cycle, planning, stand-ups, reviews, retrospectives, and establish a lightweight roadmap visibility artifact so stakeholders always know where the platform stands.

I COVER LETTER

Dear Hiring Team at Akkodis,

I am applying for the Product Owner / Scrum Master role. With 13 years of product ownership in regulated and complex enterprise environments, I have spent the majority of my career doing exactly what this role describes: sitting between business stakeholders and engineering teams, translating operational requirements into structured user stories and acceptance criteria, facilitating the full Scrum ceremony cycle, and maintaining roadmap visibility across dependencies and risks.

Two recent engagements are directly relevant. At Rohde & Schwarz, I owned a multinational defence AI data platform as part of the FCAS European programme, a programme defined by cross-functional complexity, strict acceptance criteria, and the need to coordinate across architects, data scientists and engineers who rarely agreed on priorities. I introduced GitOps delivery with ArgoCD, which compressed rollout time from days to thirty minutes and made the platform hotfix-capable. That was a product backlog and delivery problem before it was a technical one, and solving it required exactly the kind of structured sprint discipline and stakeholder alignment this role calls for. At the Bundesagentur für Arbeit, I ran a national labour-market analytics platform, integrated test automation into the Jenkins pipeline, introduced Dagster and dbt for repeatable data imports, and carried a full UI relaunch through a live production system. Both roles combined real-time data workflows with operational approval processes, the domain your preferred experience section specifically names.

Earlier, at EMIL Group, I restructured an 18-person delivery organisation into three lean teams with dedicated leads when the existing structure was losing engineers and client trust simultaneously. At CLINET Platforms, I took a three-person mobile health team whose roadmap was undeliverable and cut it to the top ten percent of features, user acceptance rose more than fivefold as a result. Both situations required the same discipline: protect the team's focus, keep business stakeholders informed, and make the sprint a unit that actually delivers rather than a calendar event.

I am currently based in Berlin, hold EU citizenship with no visa requirement, and am available within four weeks. I am actively open to relocating to the UAE and would welcome an on-site role in Dubai or Abu Dhabi as a positive fit. My English is C2, I have presented Qcrypt AG's quantum-encryption product to international investors in English, and a public video sample is available at youtube.com/watch?v=nt06f71lgfE.

I would be glad to speak with you about how my background maps to the specific platform and team you are building.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
