

Philipp Hilbert. Senior PM turning onboarding funnels into first trades.

Positioning, I own activation end to end: funnel instrumentation, friction removal, and the path to a user's first "aha moment", backed by 13 years of product ownership in fintech, regulated software, and crypto.

BERLIN, GERMANY · HILBERT@TRUE-NORTH.BERLIN · TRUE-NORTH.BERLIN

LinkedIn · GitHub · www.true-north.berlin · YouTube \(EN sample\)

Dear Kraken team,

I have been a crypto user for over eight years. I actively trade spot and perpetuals across Kraken, Hyperliquid, Bitget, and several DEX venues, and I spend real time on market microstructure, liquidation heatmaps, routing quality, slippage analysis. That background shapes how I think about a Pro onboarding funnel: the users arriving there are not confused beginners, they are people with real intent who will leave the moment the product feels slower or less trustworthy than what they already use.

Activation and funnel work is where I have spent most of my career. At CLINET Platforms I inherited a roadmap that a five-person team could not deliver. I cut it to the top 10% of features against agreed success measures and user acceptance rose more than fivefold. At Rohde & Schwarz I instrumented two competing workflows and the one the team had invested the most design effort in recorded exactly zero clicks, data over intuition, every time. Both situations required the same skill Kraken Pro needs: the ability to look at a funnel without attachment and act on what the numbers say rather than what the team hoped.

On the AI side, I use Claude Code, Copilot, Cursor, and n8n every day, for prototyping, for generating edge-case specs, and for building lightweight agentic workflows. For an onboarding funnel, that means faster iteration on personalization logic, quicker synthesis of qualitative signals from user interviews, and a tighter loop between "we think this is a friction point" and "here is the experiment result."

I founded Kvitt Payment Solutions, a mobile P2P payments product that ran inside the girocard ecosystem after acquisition by Sparkasse. Building and closing a fintech product taught me how users form trust with financial infrastructure and where they lose it, which is exactly the dynamic a Pro onboarding experience has to manage from the first screen.

I would welcome the chance to go deeper on how I would approach the first 90 days on the Pro onboarding funnel.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
