Dear Trish Villena and the Globant Hiring Team,

I am writing in response to the Product Manager opening for Globant's digital transformation programme with a leading financial services organisation in the UAE. With thirteen years of product ownership across regulated industries, insurance, public-sector analytics, healthcare, fintech, and defence AI, I have spent most of my career in exactly the environment this role describes: complex organisations, compliance constraints, cross-functional squads, and the pressure to deliver digital products that actually change how a business operates.

At EMIL Group I inherited an 18-person delivery organisation that was losing both its senior engineers and its client trust simultaneously. I restructured it into three focused teams, reversed near-total attrition, and shipped the Claims Center from concept to production. At the Bundesagentur für Arbeit I managed the national labour-market analytics platform, introduced Dagster and dbt to eliminate manual quarterly data imports, and carried a full UI relaunch alongside a major ETL migration, all while serving as Deputy IT Security Officer. These were not clean greenfield projects; they were the kind of high-stakes, multi-stakeholder programmes that a financial services digital transformation resembles most.

On the customer journey and UX side: at CLINET Platforms I cut a mobile patient app roadmap to its top 10% of features, measured against agreed acceptance criteria, and watched user acceptance rise more than fivefold as a result. At Qcrypt AG I owned the product architecture for a quantum-secure encryption product and drove it to enterprise buyers who demanded a sub-two-minute installation path. I understand that good product management in regulated environments means holding the user's journey and the compliance boundary in the same hand.

My fintech background is direct: Kvitt Payment Solutions, a mobile P2P group-payment product I co-founded, was acquired and operated by Sparkasse inside the girocard ecosystem. I have shipped payment flows, managed PSP integrations, and navigated the expectations of financial services partners. The UAE context is one I take seriously, I have actively studied the region's digital banking landscape and am willing to relocate to Dubai or Abu Dhabi for the right programme.

I would welcome a conversation about how my background maps to the client's specific transformation agenda. Thank you for considering my application.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
