Dear StreamTV team,

I am a Product Owner and product manager with 13 years of experience running software development teams, and I want to bring that to StreamTV as your Technical Product Owner.

At Rohde & Schwarz I managed a cross-functional team of 15+ engineers and data scientists building an AI and data platform for the FCAS programme. I instrumented two competing product workflows, challenged the assumption behind the roadmap with hard data, and redirected the strategy. At EMIL Group I inherited an 18-person delivery organisation that was losing its senior engineers: I restructured it into three lean teams, cut attrition from near-total to a single departure, and shipped the Claims Center from concept to production. At Bundesagentur für Arbeit I ran delivery as Deputy IT Security Officer while carrying a full UI relaunch and a large ETL migration in parallel. In each case the job was the same: translate unclear priorities into buildable work, keep the team honest on estimates, and remove the blockers that slow delivery down.

I write production code as part of my daily work. I use Claude Code, GitHub Copilot, and Cursor to read and review code, draft specs, and check whether an estimate is grounded. I have Asana and GitHub as planning surfaces, and I know how to run Scrum without running it by the book when the book does not fit.

The part of the StreamTV role that interests me most is the mandate to design the development process for an AI-first team. I have done this in pieces at previous roles, but never with an explicit brief to do it end to end. A small, fast team where Claude is a first-class planning tool rather than an afterthought is the environment I want to be in.

I am based in Berlin, fluent in German and English, and available on four weeks' notice.

Best regards, Philipp Hilbert
